A Block Chain based Drug Traceability in Health Care Supply Chain

Gitam University , Bangalore June 2024 - September 2024

A Block chain-based approach for drug traceability enhances transparency, security, and efficiency by recording every transaction on an immutable ledger. This ensures the authenticity and integrity of pharmaceutical products, reducing the risks of counterfeit drugs and improving patient safety.

Sustainable Food Consumption App (Front-end)

Developed the front end of a full-stack web app aimed at reducing food waste. The app includes features like meal planning, grocery list generation, leftover recipe suggestions, and food expiry tracking. The front end is designed with an attractive UI, and it is built with the intention to integrate machine learning for personalized recipe suggestions in the future.
